MILGARD ADDS NEW OPTIONS TO FIBERGLASS WINDOW OFFERING
- New features and colors add flexibility to the Ultra™ and WoodClad™ lines -

ORLANDO (Feb. 13, 2008) — Milgard Windows & Doors is adding new options to its Ultra and WoodClad lines of fiberglass windows, expanding its offering of windows for the upscale new home construction market. The company has been producing fiberglass windows since 1995 and because it now pultrudes its own lineals, is able to control the manufacturing process and the quality of the end product.

“Fiberglass is a fast-growing segment of the window market, due to the durability and energy efficiency of the material,” said Maureen Faccia, Director of Marketing for Milgard. “In addition, with the Environmental Protection Agency now recognizing fiberglass as a green material, this introduction gives our customers more flexibility to offer this premium material to homeowners.”

Featuring Milgard’s sturdy fiberglass frame and sash design with standard SunCoat® low-e glass for energy efficiency, the new offerings include a ¾ inch grid option available in the Vintage style grid on both the Ultra and WoodClad lines. The new double hung windows offer the traditional ventilation of the double-hung design with the added benefit of top and bottom tilt-in sashes for easy cleaning. In addition, the new double-hung option offers a fusion lock that activates the tilt latches and they come equipped with constant force balancers that make for smooth and easy operation. Both the Ultra and WoodClad window lines are also now available in a new Matte Black color for windows and patio doors, adding to the already extensive color options on both window lines.
